He focuses his professional practice on state contracts, and national and foreign arbitrations.

He provides advisory on public procurement processes for supply, services rendering, and works execution with special emphasis on sanction procedures.

He counsels construction, mining, industrial companies and real estate promoters on the acquisition of lands, multi-family complexes development, shopping mall construction, urban planning, buildings regularization, land zoning, urban habilitation, and municipal legislation.

Carlos is member of the investment committees of real estate funds, an arbitrator and expert in ICSID arbitrations on property law. He was manager of the Legal and Research and Development Advisory in the former agency, now known as Public Procurement Authority (OSCE), as well as team member prepared the current Public Procurement Law.
